

NATION'S GOOD ENGLAND FEARS ABOVE PARTY, SAYS WILSON

Wilson's Speaking Tours to Remain on the Job in Washington

WAR CAUSES GREAT STRAIN

Congress Can Adjourn, but President Must Be Ready
for Emergency

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—President Wilson announced today he would not make a speaking tour during his campaign. He declared his intention of "staying on the job" because of the unlooked for European situation. The president made known his intentions in a letter to Representative J. Morgan Kousser, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, who had written him asking whether he would make a speaking campaign this fall. The correspondence was made public at the White House today. "America is greater than any party," the president wrote. "America cannot properly be served by any man who for momentary measures his interest against the good of the country. The time has come for the destiny of the United States as for the other nations of the world. A little heart, a little courage, a little self-sacrifice, a little devotion may, under God, make that destiny this way or that. Parties can care for selves. Great hearts, great natures, will rise to a stimulated and guided and set a path without nursing if the men it makes them up and the men who do it forget themselves to serve the path of liberty and peace."

The president asked "that congress remain to do its work of necessity and resolute service and bring it to a successful conclusion."

He said, however, that he saw nothing to keep congress in session after emergency work was finished.

Declines Several Invitations.

The president had been asked to speak in Iowa, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Maine and other states. He had previously told those who asked him that he would make no promises until he knew the general situation was as follows:

"White House, Sept. 4, 1914.

My dear Mr. Morgan:

I have read your letter of September 4, and with appreciation of its importance. It appears to me as the leader of the party now in power with several force and persuasiveness. The one of a very extraordinary session of congress is at hand which has I venture to say, been more fruitful in important legislation of permanent usefulness to the country than any sesion of congress within the memory of

GERMANS BEING RUSHED TO DEFENSE OF THE AUSTRIANS

Russians Continue to Smash Against Border; Austro-Hungarian Empire Is Said to Be Crumbling Now

LONDON, Sept. 7. (Monday)—The German public has not been permitted to learn of the Russian victories in Galicia and Poland, according to dispatches from Amsterdam. Some of the papers which published the news of these victories were suppressed and Austrian staff reports claiming success were circulated.

Heavy German forces are rushing to the relief of the Austrians, according to the same correspondent. The Russians report that a German corps approached the scene of the Tarnobrzeg battle too late to participate.

The Russian embassy has issued a reply to the Austrian claims by a counter claim that the latest reports of the battle at Lemberg show it to have been a greater stroke than at first indicated; and that besides 70,000 prisoners, 300 guns, instead of 200, as first reported, were taken, together with 20 locomotives, 150 cars and enormous stores of provisions.

May Involve Near East.

The prospect that the European conflagration may now spread to the near east is becoming more threatening. All the latest dispatches from Turkey describe preparations for war against Greece, which include the importation of 2,000 German officers and noncommissioned officers, the majority of them
attached to the navy and the artillery.
Should Turkey fight as the ally of Germany?

FIGHTING IN PROGRESS ON ALL SIDES FRENCH CAPITAL

Kaiser Directing Bombardment of Nancy, East of Paris; Maubeuge Said to Be Holding Out,
Despite Heavy Assault by Germans

ALLIES IN RETREAT,
RUSSIANS Routed,
SAYS BERLIN REPORT

German Official Dispatch Discredits French and English Version

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The following German official statement was received tonight by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph company:

"The German army administration reports that in the west the allied troops are in retreat between Paris and Verdun and that the German troops are pursuing them. Paris is empty and the only scene of animation there is around the railway stations which are filled with thousands of fugitives.
The London newspapers do not consider that Paris will defend itself to the utmost."

"In the eastern theater of war the Austrian attack on Lublin continues and the armies commanded by Generals Dank and Auffenberg are still engaged in dispersing the enemy so as to obtain the fullest advantage from their glorious victories at Kraunk and Zamocho."

Important Action Imminent.

"These victories which were achieved
after three days of bitter fighting, resulted in the flight of the enemy.
The Russian advance on Lemberg has been brought to a halt."

"Further important developments are imminent. The first Polish legion, under Austrian command, has been formed at Cracow. The emperor has appointed General Von Vassynski to command this force. Warsaw is being prepared for defense by the Russians."

"It is reported that fear of the German fleet has caused great alarm in English seaport towns. In Liverpool, torpedo nets are set in front of the docks every evening. Elsewhere around the coast the nervousness occasioned by the German mines is said to be indestructible."

The enrollment of recruits for the British army is proceeding slowly.

FRENCH BEGIN BOMBARDMENT OF CATTARO, AUSTRIAN ADRIATIC PORT

British Losses to Date, 15,151 Men; Steamer
Blown Up by Mine in North Sea; Russians
Are in Pursuit of Retreating Austrians

The allied armies defending the roads to Paris again have come into contact with the German right wing on the banks of the river Grand Morin, which runs east and west, somewhat south of the Paris lines of defense.

An official statement issued by the French war office says
the allies' advance troops came into touch with the German forces, which seem to be covering on the Hver Oureq toward the southwest. The movement resulted in an advantage to the French.

The town of Maubeuge, which it is reported British troops are assisting the French garrison to defend, is said still to be resisting the German assault.

KAISER DIKEOTS ATTACK ON NANCY

From Berlin, by way of Amsterdam, comes the report that the Germans are attacking the forts at Nancy, and that Emperor William and the general staff are watching the operations.

The British official war bureau has issued a long survey of the operations of the British army during the past week, and, in addition, a list of British casualties, which shows a total of more than 15,000 men up to September 1.

The statement, which is based on a report from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British forces at the front, speaks highly of the spirit of the British soldiers and their achievements. It declares that while the British losses are heavy, they are not one-third of the losses inflicted by the British troops on the Germans. The statement closes with a call for more men.

BOMBARDMENT OF CATTARO BEGUN

Berlin reports that 3,000 British prisoners have reached Doboritz.

A bombardment has begun of the fortifications at Cattaro, an Austro-Hungarian seaport, by the French fleet, and advices from Cettinge credit the Montenegrin troops with defeat of the Austrians at Boljanitz, in Herzegovina.

France is calling out the 1915 recruits, and in this way will add 250,000 men to her forces within a short time.

The German reichstag, represented by members of all parties, has promised its full support to whatever measures the minister of marine deems necessary. Appropriations will be made for the replacement of the ships which have been lost and to carry out the program of construction already arranged.

STEAMER BLOWN UP BY MINE

A British steamer of the Wilson line, with hundreds of passengers aboard, has foundered in the North sea after striking a mine. Most of those aboard were saved.

Russian official announcements describe a strong offensive movement against the Austrians on September 4. The Forty-fifth Austrian regiment of infantry surrendered, 1,600 men being taken. German troops, marching to the aid of the Austrians, were attacked, but the results of these operations have not been made known.

A German official statement says that the allied troops are in retreat between Paris and Verdun and that German troops are pursuing them. It adds that in the eastern theater of war the Austrian attack on Lublin continues and that the Austrians are engaged in dispersing the Russians.

Late advices say that the train service between Paris and Dieppe has been suspended.

BRITISH LOSS IN WAR TO DATE IS 15,151 MEN

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The operations of the British army in France last week are reviewed in a statement issued by the official war information bureau today.

The statement reads:

"It is now possible to make a general survey, in continuation of that issued on August 30, of the operations of the British army during the past week."

"No new main trial of strength has taken place. There have, indeed, been battles in various parts of the immense front, which in other wars would have been considered operations of the first magnitude. But in this war they are merely incidents of strategic withdrawal and contraction of the allied forces, caused by the initial shock on the frontier and in Belgium and by the enormous strength which the Germans have thrown into the west theater, while suffering heavily through weakness in the east."

BRITISH CONFORM TO
THE FRENCH CAMPAIGN

"The British expeditionary army has conformed with the general movement of the French forces and acted in harmony with the strategic conceptions of

What Drew 100,000 Tourists To Europe?

Americans Were Attracted to Other Side of Atlantic to See Things No More Unusual Than Could Be Found in America, Says Guide Who Took Their Money

What is it that drew those 100,000 American tourists across the water to Europe, where they have "exotic" objects of pity because of the plight so many of them found themselves in at the outbreak of European hostilities? The man who could take his family abroad for three or four months a year was always considered higher in the scale than the man who had to be content with staying on this side of the water. It mattered not who had the most fun, the man across the water was the envy of all.

Naturally the question has arisen, Why?

America is a beautiful land. Along our bodies of water we have pleasanter weather than they have in Europe. We have high mountains and great fishing. We have battlefields and ruins. But no one cares particularly to visit what they have to show in America. They must see Europe.

The European tourist is a manifold fellow. Sometimes he is a school man going to Europe to get more education. Sometimes he is a student just getting education. Sometimes he is a millionaire who doesn't need any education. When he gets to Europe he acts according to what he needs and wants. Arriving at London, if he belongs to the majority of the genus tourist he will sign up with one of the tourist expeditions which has the art of seeing Europe canned and condensed and ready to serve at any moment. He joins a tourist party and begins to see while the guide tells him all about it.

"It is the big, grand joke," said one of these guides. "I make much money showing tourists the sights, but they have more nights in America. When the season is dull I go to America to travel and see myself. They have few guides there and a fellow can see without interference."

The American tourists do not know all that, however. They go, they see, and are seen, and return without their money. In Europe the tourist sees the big buildings and historic buildings. If he has been to Europe several times and has seen all the guides can show and has made some friends he usually visits those friends on his expeditions. Sometimes he will stay several weeks or months in Paris drinking in the cafes or open restaurants and watching Frenchmen and women dancing on the tables of the cafes. He could see something of the same thing in American summer gardens but it is different to be in Europe.

If he has relatives in Europe and is up in society he gets invitations to the big dress balls and may go to the horse show. Sometimes he goes down to Monte Carlo and gambles. There is just one species in Europe who see it all, and that is the man who goes it alone and doesn't follow established lines set down by the guides. He can come back from Europe without seeing a single one of the stereotyped sights of the continent and yet see more than any of the rest of the travelers.

It is believed that next year will see a great diminution of travel to Europe. Perhaps the war will not affect the travel as much as some think. The Titanic disaster did not affect travel to Europe. People will travel despite danger.

BIG MONEY SPENT TO RICHLY TOURISTS.

Big money has been spent to bring back tourists in Europe. One day $25,000 was deposited with the United States Treasury to be paid in securing the safe return home of Mrs. Adolphus Busch, widow of the wealthy brewer. Mrs. Busch was in Holland. She has communicated from Langenschwalbach, with the Consul at A. . .

The Busch deposit was the largest in the history of the United States.

posted by Americans for the relief of relatives and friends abroad. Deposits of $153,000 were made with the United States Treasury, the State Department turned over to the treasury $211,000, the New York Subtreasury received deposits of $259,013, and the Baltimore Subtreasury $17,073, all in a few days.

The conditions in Europe as the tourists were running away can be told by themselves. Suddenly they learned the land where they were enjoying themselves was at war. Prices went up and many of them had taken only enough money for ordinary expenses. The ships on which they had engaged passage refused to sail and the railroads quit running trains because the armies needed the trains to move troops.

When the refugees arrived in America one of them gave the following recital of what he saw as he left Europe:

"Thousands were left on the dock at Southampton. The most impressive scene I witnessed was when more than 100,000 Londoners gathered before Buckingham Palace and chanted to the tune of the chimes of Westminster Abbey 'We Want King George.' In response to this tremendously quaint appeal, the King and Queen, together with the Prince of Wales, all in evening dress, appeared upon the balcony and bowed to the vast throng."

"We went to Southampton from Portsmouth and it was on this trip that our trunk containing gowns and some jewelry were lost. At Southampton we were routed out of the Great Southern Hotel together with 450 other guests at 4 o'clock on the morning the Philadelphia sailed because the hotel was to be given over to the soldiers."

"We had only our hand luggage when we went aboard the boat. Many gave their jewels for tips. And because there were 1,100 passengers on a boat with accommodations for only about 500 the congestion was terrible. Many were compelled to travel third-class, but they were permitted to eat with the first cabin passengers. The discomfort of wealthy men and women in the steerage was extreme. They slept on rude mattresses thrown over ordinary wooden boxes. Partitions separated the men and women. All wore their clothes all night. The odor in the steerage was sickening, but everybody was willing to put up with the discomforts to get back home. No towels or soap were served to the people in the steerage. I often smuggled these articles past the ship's officers and gave them to friends below. These people were honored when we reached dock. The people who were in first-class stepped aside and allowed the steerage passengers to go ashore first."

News a day old was printed in the daily papers at the European capitals at the outbreak of hostilities. Later the age of the news kept growing. One tourist, writing from Paris, says: The shrieking camels (peddlers) gallop through the streets, waving their news sheets, but it is almost always news of twenty-four hours ago. Communiqués are given out at 11:30 in the morning, at 5:30 in the afternoon and at 11:30 at night, but each long day gives us little more than the morning papers tell of the events of yesterday.

Of local news there is none. There is nothing doing in Paris but steady preparation for meeting contingencies by organizing ambulances and relief for the poor.

Apart from the scanty war news, all that the papers can find to fill their columns are extracts from leading articles and reprints of the rules and regulations posted at every street corner. A state of siege, with the enemy still outside the borders, is detestably wearying and irksome.

Everywhere there is tranquility. The concierges and the few shopkeepers who are left sit at their doors surrounded by their families, and you can walk a couple of miles at night without meeting a policeman.

been sharing his life has willingly left them without a name of which they may one day be proud.

The eighteen American officers who came here before the war to study French tactics, are all amazed at receiving no word from the War Department at Washington authorizing them to accompany the French Army. One of them said that sixty cablegrams had been sent to Washington, including several from Ambassador Herrick, but the only reply was an order that all should assist in the relief of Americans.

Among yesterday's applicants for relief were a dozen colored retainers of "Jack" Johnson, who were unable to obtain their wages, and also a number of theatrical men and women.

"A big European war will be a fine thing for the newspapers," said a tourist in London.

"In what way?" an editor inquired. "Help you to sell papers," was his reply.

Others may see your sentiment, but you alone can observe the fly swimming around in it. The ink is scarcely dry upon the printed testimony of one newspaper manager to the effect that the Spanish-American War had cost his publication a tidy 750,000 net.

The editor of the London Post said his paper had twenty correspondents in the Boer War and cable rates were then $1.20 a word from Cape Town. That African conquest was the biggest menace to newspaper dividends which London has experienced in a generation.

He saw dispatches come from Manila during our insurrection there which cost $2,000 a column. That included the price paid the special correspondent for sending one article.

Yes, a convention of newspaper proprietors would as quickly endorse a great war for their own money making purposes as a farmer's grange would vote to employ a pack of wolves to guard their sheep.

Brush Work Recalls Artist. The experience of these last years has shown the facility with which the most skilled experts in art may be deceived in identifying the author of a picture or a statue.

Prof. A. P. Laurie of the Edinburgh College, Edinburgh, who has studied the history of colors somewhat extensively, has prepared a detailed list of the characteristic pigments of each epoch. When it can be established that a given color is not used in a certain epoch, and that another epoch was employed at such and such a time, the examination of the pigments used in a painting will enable us, in many cases, to establish the approximate date of its origin, and to decide whether the generally received opinion is correct.

On the other hand, the microscopic examination of the surface of a painting often makes it possible to tell whether it has been retouched. Finally, since certain artists were in the habit of using only particular colors, the presence of these is very strong evidence in favor of the authenticity of a picture. Professor Laurie has also been struck with the surprising conclusions that may be drawn, with a sufficient effort, from the technique of the "brush work" of an artist. Experts in art, it is true, often make use of a simple lens to examine the details of a picture, but to develop a rudimentary proof into a really scientific one, we must, as Mr. Laurie has done, have recourse to microphotography, together with a lantern that will project on a ground glass screen the image of a small part of the painting, sufficiently enlarged to will, within reasonable limits (1.5 diameters). The use of orthochromatic plates makes it possible to render correctly all the shades of the picture and to reproduce the slightest details of the painting's structure. A typical microphotograph can thus be preserved as long as desired, to serve at any moment for a comparison of brush work. Even if the picture is of dimensions sufficient to make an enlargement unnecessary, even if the brushwork is so coarse as to be examined with the naked eye, the photographic method presents evident advantages: a concentrating of the attention of the critic on a given spot, and eliminating the influence that the colors and forms of the rest of the picture might have over him.

When two microphotographs present perfect similarity in the brush work, we may in all security assert the identity of origin of the corresponding pictures. In case of disagreement, on the contrary, we may not merely contest the authenticity of a doubtful picture. It would be necessary first to study the pictures of the same painter belonging to different epochs, and to follow the modifications that his technique may have undergone in the course of his career. It would be a good thing to establish in this way for each of the great masters, a complete system of specimens of his technique, which in all doubtful cases would furnish the necessary bases of comparison.

Not All Serbians. A clear distinction must be kept between Serbians, or subjects of the Kingdom of Serbia; and Serbs, or people of the Serb race wherever found. Confusion at this point has led to some misunderstanding of the events connected with the assassination of the Austrian heir. Serbia's responsibility, of course, does not extend beyond her frontiers. If all the Serbs were united in one kingdom, as is the dream of the pan-Serbian enthusiasts, they would make a very considerable nation.

In Serbia before the war there were not quite 3,000,000, and while the war extended the boundaries of the kingdom, the added population is not wholly Serb. No revised statistics are available, but it is likely that the Serbians of Serb race are now about 4,000,000. To these may be added 280,000 Montenegrins, Serb by race and uncompromising allies. The rest of the Serbs, more than half, are in Austria-Hungary, and are thus distributed: Bosnia-Herzegovina, 1,713,000; Dalmatia, 667,000; Istria, 133,000; Croatia-Slavonia, 2,334,000; Banat and Batschka, 872,000. The total is about 10,000,000, but while the ties between them might suffice to hold them together if they were once brought under one flag, there are fierce disputes which make co-operation difficult and would weaken such a movement for independence as the revolutionaries dream of.

If all Austria's Slav subjects outnumbering the dominant Germans and Magyars, should rise at once, the empire would probably go to smash, but the incapacity of the Slavs for staunch co-operation has kept that race at the mercy of the governing races. To the Slavs as an element of unrest must be added the large Roumanian population which would like to be annexed to Roumania, and if the trouble in the Near East should spread the attitude of Roumania would be of extreme importance.

On the other hand, the microscopic examination of the surface of a painting often makes it possible to tell whether it has been retouched. Finally, since certain artists were in the habit of using only particular colors, the presence of these is very strong evidence in favor of the authenticity of a picture. Professor Laurie has also been struck with the surprising conclusions that may be drawn, with a sufficient effort, from the technique of the "brush work"

Worth Considering

This is the time when parents are giving a good deal of thoughtful attention to the choice of a school or college for their children. If the boy or girl is to attend a school or college, and the school has already been selected, the problem is settled for this year. But suppose you are one of those who are still undecided?

Have you considered the advantages of educating your child in a Colorado school rather than in an Eastern institution? Do you know that many parents are learning these advantages, and that in consequence the patronage of the home schools and colleges is increasing largely? And do you know that our own educational institutions are as well equipped, as ably administered and as economical, way measure up to as high a standard as the best private institutions of the East?

Sending your child to a Colorado school means that he will have the advantage of living in a health-giving climate, where physical development will go hand-in-hand with mental growth. This is a matter of special importance to the boy or girl of delicate physique. Outdoor life in the bracing Colorado climate tends to the normal development of mind and body.

Here in Colorado are private schools and colleges for both boys and girls which rank with the best schools of the East in the high character of their faculties and the thoroughness of the instruction afforded.

Isn't it worth while to investigate this opportunity fully before deciding to send your boy or girl East?

Home Industry Talks

Business to the amount of $3,000,000 approximately is done in this city annually. To put into circulation $1,000,000 more would be to stimulate business interests immeasurably.

This can be done, and in patronizing our home industries and merchants, a long step has been taken toward this end. Business prosperity means an increase in population, more homes, business blocks, civic improvements, a greater chance along all lines. Give our local industries and merchants a square deal, a fair trial, and you will see for yourself that our own fair city offers you unsurpassed advantages. Colorado Springs goods, whether made or purchased here,
are better and cheaper than those bought outside the city, taking quality into consideration.
